

Buenos Días, Señor Jesús

Theme: We are always on a Mission, whether at home or abroad, whether expecting to experience the Kingdom or not. God will use us in powerful ways if we recognize and are open to the possibility of sharing His love. This was the sermon I gave about my 2008 Quito Quest Host experience, mostly about our week in Toñamparé. And I really don't have a man-crush on Fabian or anything. I actually intended for this to be a little longer and more in-depth on my comparison to Scripture, but for the sake of time, I cut out about two pages' worth. Suzanne Nelson still said I was "getting Baptist," and both services went over the hour mark even though I shortened it. I'm sure everyone was upset that the Presbyterians would beat them to the Country Club. Just how I like it.
